Subject consistency in responses to controls

Ann,

We're getting mass identical emails about Dimock and some are being assigned by HQs for response while others are being categorized as FYI only, no action required. Can we work with HQs to get a more consistent approach here, or if there's a method to the selection maybe someone can let us know what the system is?

There are also around 80+ identical emails that have gone to the Administrator. HQs determines what is assigned for response and what it not. I've inquired many times in the past about similar situations to HQ, and have yet to fully understand the process.

this is the identical email that we just received from two other folks as controls requiring responses - what's our policy on mass emails?
